BURGLARY SUSPECT CAPTURED AFTER CAR STOP

Trumbull Police arrested a Fairfield man who they believe is responsible for a series of residential burglaries in the Nichols section of town over the past several months.

The man, Evan Corigliano 35, of Wilson Street, Fairfield, was apprehended on Tuesday, May 29th, when officers stopped the car he was operating near his girlfriend's home on Old Dike Road. Both Corigliano and his girlfriend, Remi Cooper, 25, of Old Dike Road, Trumbull, were charged with Possession of a Controlled Substance when a Trumbull Police canine alerted to the presence of drugs, and officers recovered small amounts of heroin and cocaine in the car. Cooper was also found to have an active arrest warrant out of Redding.

During the vehicle search, officers also confiscated several distinctive pieces of jewelry that matched the description of items that had been stolen during a recent burglary nearby on Old Dike Road. When questioned, Corigliano implicated himself in the burglary. A subsequent investigation uncovered additional evidence from several other burglaries in the same area.

On Tuesday, June 26th, Corigliano was served an arrest warrant for Burglary 3rd Degree, Larceny 6th Degree, and Criminal Mischief, stemming from another burglary that had occurred on West Lake Road on May 11th. He was held on a $30,000 court set bond.

Additional charges are expected for Corigliano as the investigation continues. Trumbull detectives believe that he may be responsible for more than 10 burglaries in their town.
